

Acknowledgements

This report would not have been possible without the research and expertise of a number of people who have been engaged with the At Home in Europe Project of the Open Society Institute for the last three years. Tufyal Choudhury of Durham University is responsible for writing this report and Miriam McCarthy has analysed the data contained in this report from the research collected from 11 cities of the European Union. Tufyal was the author of the OSI report “The Situation of Muslims in the UK” (2002) and led the OSI research on Muslims in the UK, editing and contributing to the publication “Muslims in the UK: Policies for Engaged Citizens (2005).

We would like to acknowledge the primary role of the following individuals in researching and drafting individual monitoring reports upon which this report is based. Views expressed are not representative of the organisations they are affiliated to or employed by.
